Mister, wo ist Vietnam?

...NEXT STOP IS VIETNAM: The War On Record, 1961 – 2008 ist eine faszinierende, jahrelang detailliert vorbereitete Anthologie über das musikalische Erbe des Vietnamkrieges. Die Sammlung – mit 13 CDs und einem über 300-seitigem Buch voller seltener Archiv-Fotos – dokumentiert den Krieg auf intensive und nie zuvor gezeigte Art und Weise. Mehr als 330 Titel (gesungen und gesprochen) nehmen den Hörer mit auf eine Reise durch eine epochale Phase der jüngeren Zeitgeschichte. Von Amerikas ersten, naiven Vorstellungen eines Landes namens Vietnam über musikalisch geführte Diskussionen zum Thema Krieg und seine Moral bis hin zur Verarbeitung der langen Nachwirkungen des Konflikts – diese Sammlung deckt all das und noch viel mehr ab. Bob Dylan, Joan Baez, Merle Haggard, Pete Seeger, Bruce Springsteen, Phil Ochs, Johnny Cash, Yoko Ono, John Lennon, The Doors, Country Joe McDonald und Dutzende anderer Interpreten (darunter viele Vietnam-Veteranen) begleiten authentisch diese aufklärende und gleichermaßen unterhaltende Reise.

Das farbiges, die Musik informierend begleitende Buch ist gespickt mit Informationen des Musikwissenschaftlers Hugo A. Keesing zu den Songs und den Künstlern, die sie aufgenommen haben; die Geschichte des Krieges erzählt die Vietnam-Historikerin Lois T. Vietri; die Autoren Doug Bradley und Craig Werner schreiben über die Lieblingssongs der Soldaten im Feld. Das Vorwort zu diesem imposanten Werk stammt vom legendären Country Joe McDonald.

Also: Anschnallen für diese lange und faszinierende Reise – die nächste Haltestelle ist Vietnam...

ATOMIC PLATTERS

Cold War Music From The Golden Age Of Homeland Security

5 CD/1 DVD (9 Clips)-Box mit 292-seitigem gebundenen Buch

ISBN: 978-3-89916-141-0

Gewisse Parallelen zwischen der Vergangenheit und dem aktuellen Irrsinn rund um die Nationale Sicherheit können einem Angst einjagen.

"Deja vu – die nächste Runde!"

Yogi Berra, Fänger der New York Yankees

Am 6. August vor 65 Jahren veränderte der Himmel über Hiroshima die Welt – für alle Zeiten. Unglaublich, aber wahr: Die epochalen Geschehnisse führten zu einer Art 'Atom-Mode' (Atom-Cocktail gefällig...?!) und zu popkulturellen Auswüchsen (Musik, Film, Souvenirs etc.). Der Grund: Die Amerikaner versuchten auf diese Weise, den unfaßbaren Horror herunterzuspielen, den ihre Regierung über Japan ausgeklinkt hatte.

'Atomic Platters', das Ergebnis jahrelanger Arbeit, ist eine Art musikalisches 'Manhattan Project'. Es versammelt mehr als 100 authentische Songs aus der Zeit des Kalten Krieges sowie über zwei Dutzend haarsträubend naive Zivilverteidigungs-Bekanntmachungen aus der paranoiden Zeit, die uns Atombunker, Überlebens-Kekse und den Uran-Horror beschert hat; viele dieser Bekanntmachungen werden von prominenten Künstlern wie Groucho Marx, Bob Hope, Pat Boone und Johnny Cash gesprochen und/oder gesungen – um nur einige wenige namentlich zu nennen.

Zu den Künstlern, die auf den CDs dieser Box über 'die Bombe' und die 'Rote Bedrohung' singen, gehören populäre Top-Stars wie Bill Haley And His Comets, The Louvin Brothers, Marty Robbins und Wanda Jackson – aber auch faszinierende Außenseiter wie The Goldwaters, Janet Greene (die Antwort der Rechten auf Joan Baez!) und Dr. Strangelove And The Fallouts. Neben der Musik und den Bekanntmachungen enthält 'Atomic Platters' zwei ungewollt belustigende, gesprochene LPs (in voller Länge) zum Thema Zivilverteidigung, die den Menschen auf perfide Weise Angst einjagen sollten: 'If The Bomb Falls' und 'The Complacent Americans' ('Wenn die Bombe fällt' und 'Die selbstgefälligen Amerikaner').

Aber es gibt auch reichlich was fürs Auge! Der Kalte Krieg war nämlich eine multimediale Horror-Show – und die Krönung auf dieser Atompilz-Unterhaltung ist eine DVD mit neun unfaßbar bizarren Zivilverteidigungs- und Anti-Kommunismus-Kurzfilmen aus den 50er und 60er Jahren.

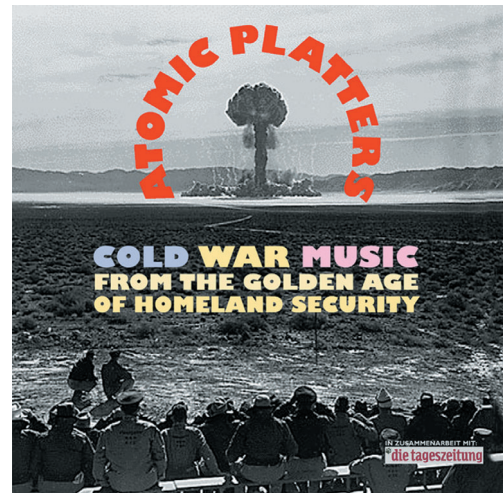

All dieses ohnehin schon aberwitzige Material wird in Form eines 292-seitigen, gebundenen Buches abgerundet: Darin gibt es fesselnde Bilder aus der Zeit des Kalten Krieges, ergänzt durch einen hochinteressanten Text von Bill Geerhart – er gehört zu CONELRAD, einer Organisation, die sich um die Bewahrung und Erforschung der atomaren Populärkultur kümmert.

Diese einmalige Zusammenstellung spricht all jene an, die sich angesichts der aktuellen Auswüchse rund um die Nationale Sicherheit in den USA verwundert die Augen reiben – und die hören und sehen wollen, wo, wie und wann dieser ganze Irrsinn begonnen hat.

Wir können nämlich 'die Bombe' besiegen...! Mal wieder...!
