SALES NOTES

Fats Domino rocks? Well, of course he does. And he was rocking and rolling long before Elvis, Jerry Lee, Ricky, Bill Haley... or anyone else. Nineteen-forty-nine, in fact. That's when he recorded The Fat Man, inaugurating a long, ongoing career that saw him become the FIRST R&B artist to cross over into the pop charts, and the ONLY one to stay there. Some of his contemporaries scored a hit or two with this new rock 'n' roll music, but Fats scored hit after hit year after year. And all the great stuff is here. Compiled for listening pleasure... for dancing... for education... and to pay tribute to the great New Orleans musicians heard on every song, this is the alltime greatest Fats Domino compilation. It begins in 1956 when teenagers heard Pat Boone's cover version of Ain't It A Shame, then heard Fats' original, and realized that one was hot... and one was not. Fats followed it with 65 more pop hits, and that's not counting the 13 R&B hits he scored before Ain't It A Shame. We have every hit you'd expect... Blue Monday, I'm Ready, Walkin' To New Orleans, Blueberry Hill, I'm Walkin', and many more. He survived rock 'n' roll, he survived Hurricane Katrina, so now let's get on our knees, bow toward New Orleans, and salute one of the true, all-time greats: Antoine 'Fats' Domino.
