- The greatest male-female duet in country music!
- "They made all other duet teams sound like footnotes" (critic John Morthland).

- Also includes many rarities including their 1973 release of Here Comes The Freedom Train and live recordings. In all, 160 recordings!
- Features an in-depth biography by noted journalist and Dolly Parton biographer, Alanna Nash.

"...I was truly humbled by the high art and soul of duet singing and its power to tell the story of the human heart, broken and otherwise, but Porter and Dolly became the gold standard for me and remain so to this day.

At a time when the airwaves and ipods spew out bloodless and over-calculated offerings of a once venerable genre, this is the real deal, my friends – country music the way God intended. And if there is a radio station in heaven, Porter and Dolly will always be in heavy rotation."

Emmylou Harris, Nashville, January 2014

INFORMATION

Porter and Dolly had even more than the playfulness and sexual chemistry of Conway Twitty-Loretta Lynn and the high psychodrama of Tammy Wynette-George Jones. Because they were both great songwriters, they wrote songs that mirrored their lives and brought an uncommon variety to their music. Both of them dressed in high hillbilly glamor – like no one else before or since. Neither of them was afraid to make a splash.

When Porter and Dolly began recording in 1967, Porter was the bigger star and Dolly watched his TV show every week as a fan. By the time of their last duets in 1976, Dolly was one of the biggest stars that country music had ever seen, and Porter's biggest hits were his duets with Dolly. Their work was sometimes playful, sometimes romantic, sometimes tortured, and sometimes unbearably sad, much like their personal and professional relationship. For the first time, it's all in one place!

DOLLY PARTON ON TOUR

Iconic singer, songwriter, musician, actress and philanthropist DOLLY PARTON will kick-off her 'Blue Smoke World Tour' starting in January 2014, making a few concert appearances in the United States before heading down under for shows in New Zealand and Australia. In May, Dolly will be heading across the pond for concerts in Europe as well as a return to the O2 Arena in London, the venue where Dolly recorded and filmed 'An Evening With ...Dolly' (DOLLY RECORDS), her widely praised DVD/CD set that was certified Gold by the RIAA.

"Every time I come to Europe I'm just as excited as I was my very first time, which was many, many years ago. I love that part of the world and I especially love the fans," adds Parton. "We always have such a good time and I've put together a lot of things for this show that I think the fans will love. We had not planned to come back so soon, but we got so much fan mail and such a great reaction that I thought 'Well, why not. If they're having a good time and we always do, let's just do it!'"

In 2011, Dolly continued to receive accolades for what was her most successful European and Australian tour of her 45-plus year career – The Better Day Tour! Dolly performed for record-breaking attendances in both Europe and Australia, surpassing her previous attendance records. In 2008, Dolly performed 17 European shows to over 170,000 fans, surpassing her then-best 2007 European tour, where she played 21 shows for over 140,000 people. Each of these treks grossed in the tens of millions of dollars and established Dolly as Europe's favorite and most successful country artist.
