- Hear these songs live when Don appears at Hemsby, England, May 2010!
- Don says, "The fans seem to like the sound effects and that's partly what's kept the songs so popular all these years. They help me out now when I sing 'You're Barking Up The Wrong Tree' by doing the 'barking'."

INFORMATION

This CD collects together all the commercial recordings and surviving demos of a man who has had two brief but entertaining careers in rock 'n' roll. In the 1950s Don Woody was a DJ who wrote some distinctively good songs. He penned Brenda Lee's first hit. Then Decca persuaded him to have a shot at being a rockabilly singer himself. During the 1970s rockabilly revival he was 're-discovered' and recently he has started performing again.

The CD booklet by Martin Hawkins tells the fascinating story of Don Woody, with unpublished interviews and rare photographs.
